60-Second Elevator Pitch

Hi, I'm Tony with 1APP, based right here in Peterborough. Picture a contractor up a ladder. A call comes in — he can't answer. By the time he's back down, that customer has already called the next name on Google. The job's gone.

That's the problem we solve. The moment a call is missed, 1APP texts the customer back instantly — and our AI receptionist can answer, qualify the lead, and book it straight into the calendar while our client is still on the job. It all runs from one dashboard, with no long-term contract.

We work with trades and service businesses — plumbers, roofers, cleaners, contractors — the people who lose real money to a phone they couldn't get to in time.

If you know an owner who's losing jobs to missed calls, I'd welcome an introduction.

DELIVERY NOTES

- ~140 words — a comfortable 60 seconds. Read it once out loud with a timer before you go.
- Open slow on the ladder — let "the job's gone" land before you move on.
- End on the ask and stop. Silence after it invites the introduction.
- Fallback one-liner: "We stop tradespeople from losing jobs to missed calls."
